TA’s

- Teaching Assistantships (TAs) are offered to those graduate students who the department believes can be especially valuable in helping the faculty carry out the undergraduate teaching mission of the school.

- Though a substantial number of TAs are used to teach laboratories and help with other instructional functions, the school is able to employ only the number actually needed.

- Those chosen must show outstanding evidence of scholarship by both scholastic record and their letters of recommendation.

- Since the language of instruction is English, only those with good oral and written English communication skills are acceptable for such a position.

- Thus, for those students whose native language is not English, employment in a TA position requires that the student demonstrate written and oral competence to the English Department. This is a University requirement and cannot be met prior to matriculation.

- TA decisions are made centrally by the ECE administration.

- TA positions outside the ECE department are the responsibility of student to apply for.
