

Two Options for Grant Writing Classes for Summer 2021 First 8-week session taught by Dr. Lisa Nielsen (lnielse@purdue.edu):

GRAD 550: Fellowship and Grant Application Writing

CRN: 29086

This 2.0 credit hour, pass/no pass, class gives you a structured system to practice proposal writing and prepare fellowship application statements. Class content focuses on common fellowship application components and the analysis of writing mechanics and content.

Class Meeting Time: Online and Asynchronous – no live class sessions, online discussion boards and email-based activities, writing assignments

Prerequisites: Enrollment in a PhD or Masters Research-Based Program

Credit Hours: 2.0 (two class modules per week with discussion boards and writing assignments)

GRAD 590: Fellowship and Grant Application Writing “Light” version – Content without writing assignments

CRN: 29706

This 1.0 credit hour, pass/no pass, class focuses on learning information that is fundamental to grant and fellowship writing. GRAD 590 uses the same lecture content from GRAD 550 but with quizzes instead of assignments and discussion boards.

Class Meeting Time: Online and Asynchronous – no live class sessions

Prerequisites: Enrollment in a PhD or Masters Research-Based Program

Credit Hours: 1.0 (two class modules per week with quizzes over the content)

Both Classes Cover the Same Lecture Content:

- Identification of Funding Opportunities
- Personal Statements
- Research Project Planning, Research Statements
- Grant Proposal Writing Style and Tone
- Quick and Effective Editing Practices

