LEGISLATIVE AUDIT BUREAU (LAB)

- Perform audits annually, at a minimum
- Historically, concentrated on department testing
- Recently, began looking at contractor testing
- Look for:
  - Testing frequency according to specifications
  - Correct incentive/disincentive payments
  - Certified samplers and testers
  - If its in black and white, it better be done

REVOCAION OF CERTIFICATION

- Certification is deemed to be a privilege. This privilege may be revoked if, in the opinion of the HTCP Advisory board,
- an individual is thought to have knowingly committed acts that are detrimental to the integrity of the HTCP or
- construction industry in general.
- Acts that could result in revocation of certification privileges:
  - _ Failure of a certificate holder to renew the certificate prior to the regular expiration.
  - _ Falsification of field or quality control test results and/or records.

REVOCAION OF CERTIFICATION

- _ Cheating on certification examinations.
- _ Submittal of false information on certification applications.
- _ Termination of an individual due to job incompetence.
- _ Criminal action by an individual while engaged in construction activities.
- _ Failure to follow specification prescribed sampling/testing methods.
- _ Failure to pass a reexamination of written and practical skills.

REVOCATION OF CERTIFICATION

- _ Failure to pay HTCP certification course tuition fees.
- _ Falsification of HTCP certificates and/or ID cards
- Revocation of certification procedure: Any individual, firm, agency or contractor associated with the HTCP may report a flagrant deficiency by a certified technician. The first response must be a written letter to the director of the HTCP. The director of the HTCP will follow the current adopted revocation of certification policy.
