

ABIGAIL MOYER

- ❖ I graduated in 2006 with my BSCE (with an emphasis in Structures)
- ❖ I was a two term President of CESAC during my junior/senior years; I was involved in a number of other various campus organizations
- ❖ I almost quit engineering school my sophomore year - best decision I ever made was to "stick it out for one more semester" -- that semester, I fell in love with moment diagrams & schedule float calculations!! I was hooked.
- ❖ I grew up in a small town in Ohio -- outside of Columbus, population 13k. I'm a small town girl turned world traveler -- I was never the smartest or the quickest to catch on & didn't graduate at the top of my class -- I attribute where I am to a lot of hard work, some stubbornness, a Purdue engineering degree, a recruiter at ExxonMobil that took a chance, a little luck -- and the support of my parents & sisters, dear friends, and undeserved blessings from the good Lord!!
- ❖ I worked for Target post-graduation for a little more than a year. Awesome company, but I decided that I'd rather shop at Target stores, than build them. I wanted to stick with Construction, just not with building Target stores over & over -- and my options at Target were limited because of that. I now work for EM's Development Company -- we develop mega projects (billions-with-a-B-dollars-a-pop mega!) globally! I don't do traditional engineering work, rather I supervise a team of (40) Planning & Project Controls Engineers/Leads and Business Managers -- we support all things cost & schedule on our mega development projects throughout the Middle East and Australia. My teams and I also dabble in contracting, procurement, contractor management, change management, external interface management (with government & investor partners), etc. as part of broader Project Management teams.
- ❖ A global company & mega projects afford opportunities to travel & live abroad.... I've traveled over a half of a million miles, have spent extensive time in Australia, lived in Tokyo, and have traveled repeatedly to the Pacific island nation, Papua New Guinea (where!?) -- and to Europe, the Middle East, Asia, and Africa.
- ❖ Outside of work, my interests include snow skiing, photography, cooking (not baking!), running, and traveling
- ❖ Fun fact: I have lived north of I-94 and south of I-10 and in all four hemispheres

