

2017

DISTINGUISHED RESEARCH AWARDS LECTURE SERIES

OCTOBER 30 ■ FOWLER HALL

LU ANN

ADAY

DISTINGUISHED

LECTURE

Michele R. Buzon

Professor, Department of Anthropology

Life and Death by the Nile: Tales from the Tombs of Tombos

Bioarchaeological excavations at the ancient Egyptian-Nubian site of Tombos have helped reveal how people lived in the ancient Nile Valley.

Date: Oct. 30 ■ Time: 10:30 a.m.

Place: Fowler Hall, Stewart Center

Reception: 11:30 a.m., Robert L. Ringel
Gallery, Stewart Center

Lecture is free and open to the public

ARDEN L.

BEMENT JR.

DISTINGUISHED

LECTURE

Mikhail J. Atallah

Distinguished Professor of Computer Science

Opportunities and Perils of the Cyber Revolution

What can we do to enhance the cyber revolution's benefits and to mitigate its threats?

Date: Oct. 30 ■ Time: 1:30 p.m.

Place: Fowler Hall, Stewart Center

Reception: 2:30 p.m., Robert L. Ringel
Gallery, Stewart Center

Lecture is free and open to the public

PURDUE
UNIVERSITY®

HERBERT NEWBY

McCOY

DISTINGUISHED

LECTURE

Jean A. Chmielewski

Alice Watson Kramer Distinguished Professor in the Department of Chemistry

Designing Unique Chemical Approaches to Solve Significant
Issues in Human Health

Molecular strategies are devised to kill pathogenic bacteria residing in human cells, and to promote penetration of antiviral agents with the goal of eradicating HIV reservoirs.

Date: Oct. 30 ■ Time: 3:30 p.m.

Place: Fowler Hall, Stewart Center

Reception: 4:30 p.m., Robert L. Ringel
Gallery, Stewart Center

Lecture is free and open to the public

An Equal Access/Equal Opportunity University
Produced by Purdue Marketing and Media EVRP-17-9304